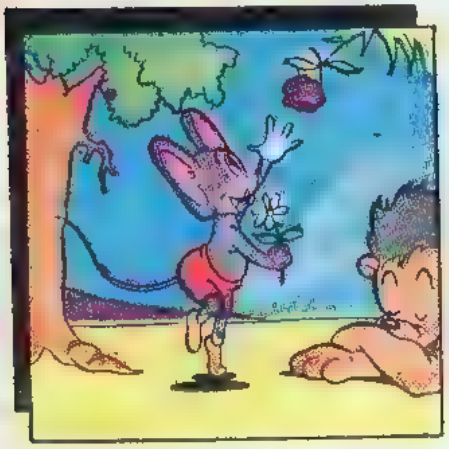
THE LION and the MOUSE

a modern version of the Famous Aesop Fable

The mouse was skipping happily through the woods. The reason the mouse was happy was because there wasn't any reason for him to be sad.



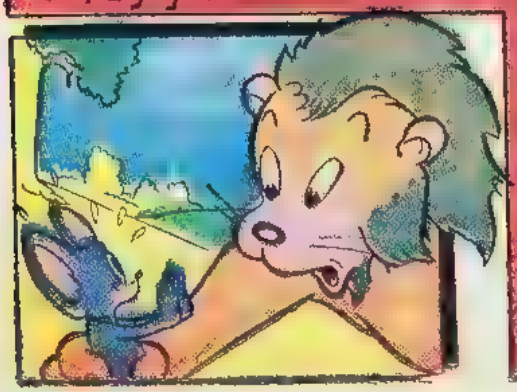
Can you think of a better reason for him to be happy?

The mouse tripped over a sleeping lion's paw.

Things happened fast after that. The lion woke up and clapped down his paw on the mouse and held him tightly against the ground.

The mouse suddenly ceased to be happy. In fact, he was about the saddest mouse you would be likely to find. He knew the lion was going to eat him. And he wasn't even on the menu.

"Please spare my life", the mouse pleaded. "Someday I may be able to repay you."



The lion roared with laughter at the mere thought that such an insignificant creature as the mouse could ever perform any service for the King of the forest.

"I'll let you go", he said. "Luckily for you, I'm not very hungry at the moment. Now run, ... before I change my mind!"

The mouse needed no urging. He scampered away so fast he almost left his breath behind him.

The next day the lion was strolling through the forest when he let out a sudden yelp of pain. He was caught in a hunter's trap!

Though the lion struggled with might and main, he could not free himself. The ropes held him fast.

Soon the hunters would return to kill him.

But the mouse heard his cry of pain. Nibbling with his sharp little teeth at the knot in the rope, he set the lion free.

"Thank you", said the lion. "You saved me from the hunters."

"If you had not spared me yesterday," the mouse replied, "I would not have been alive to help you today. Your own kindness has repaid you."

The moral of this fable is plain: Kindness is never thrown away. There is no creature so small or weak that we may not someday need his help.

BOZO
THE BOWLEGGED BULL —
EVER SINCE BOZO ACCIDENTALLY DEFEATED SALVADOR THE MATADOR, HE HAS BEEN A HERO IN BULLTOWN! NO ONE KNOWS THAT BOZO ACTUALLY IS TOO TIMID TO FIGHT ANYBODY!
BUT A HERO CANNOT REST FOREVER ON HIS LAURELS, AS BOZO DISCOVERED WHEN HIS OWN REPUTATION AS A MIGHTY BULL COMPELLED HIM TO FACE UNUSUAL PERIL IN --- "BOZO GOES TO THE RODEO!"
BOZO IS A VERY HAPPY BULL INDEED...
TA-TA-DA-DE-DUM ...
FOR HE IS COURTING HIS LADY LOVE....
AH, LOLITA!
KNOCK

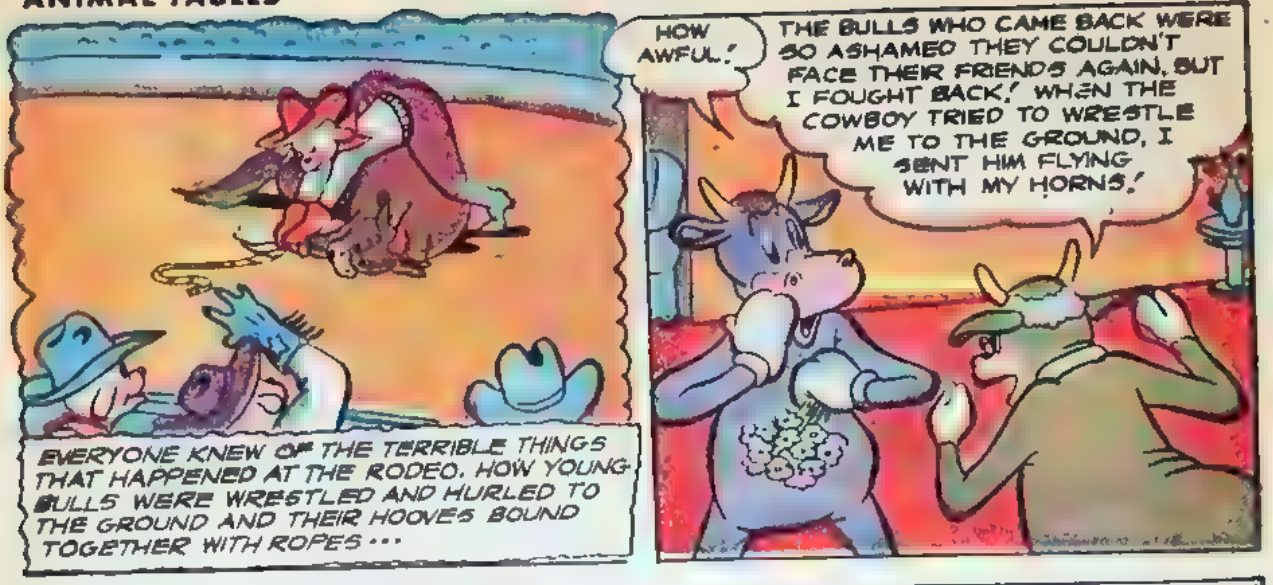
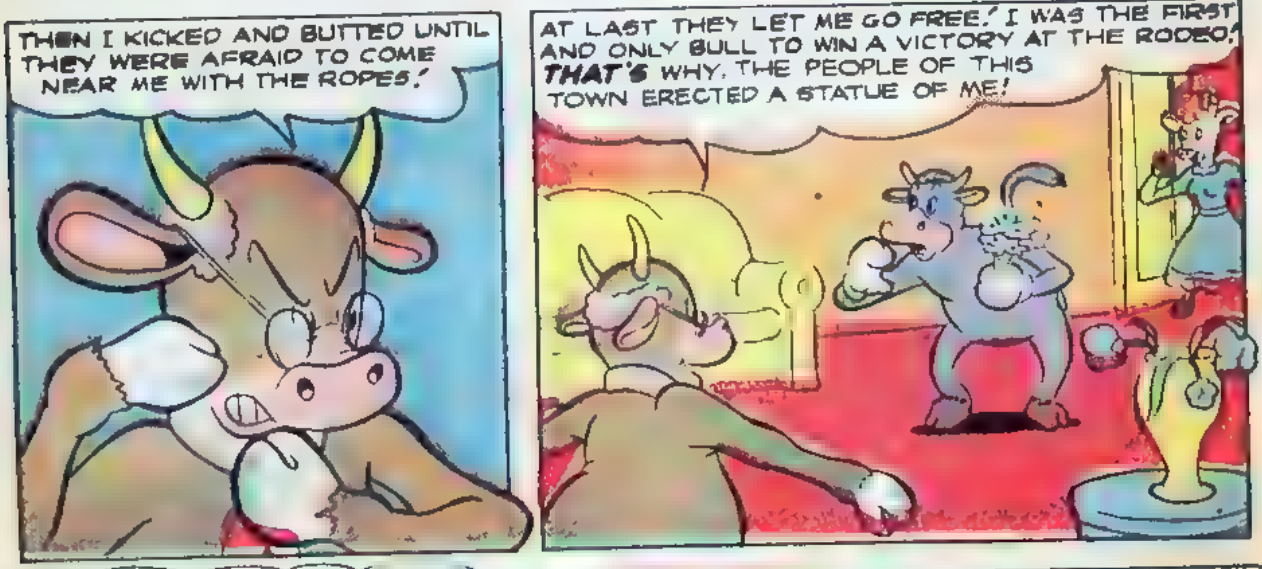
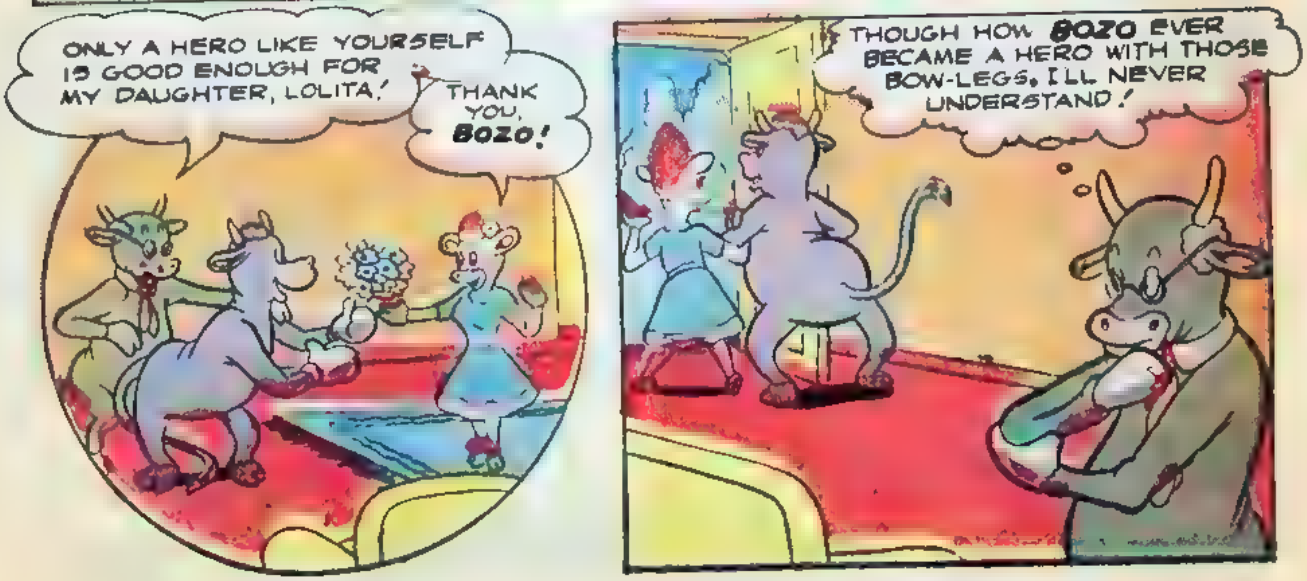
¿QUIEN ES?
COME RIGHT IN, BOZO!
YOU'RE ALWAYS WELCOME IN THIS HOUSE! AFTER ALL, YOU DEFEATED SALVADOR THE MATADOR!
GULP! YES, SIR!
YOU'RE A HERO! ONCE I WAS A GREAT HERO TOO! HAVE YOU SEEN THAT STATUE OF ME?
MANY TIMES, SIR! I'VE ALWAYS ADMIRED IT!
ONCE I WAS THE TOUGHEST, STRONGEST BULL IN THE WHOLE COUNTRY! EVERYONE FEARED ME!
RODEO
ONE DAY THEY CAME TO TAKE ME TO THE RODEO. I FOUGHT THEM, BUT THEY WERE TOO MANY FOR ME...
RODEO
THE TOWNSPEOPLE SADLY WATCHED ME BEING DRIVEN AWAY. MANY THE FINE, PROUD YOUNG BULLS THEY HAD SEEN COME BACK FROM THE RODEO BROKEN IN SPIRIT AND ASHAMED....



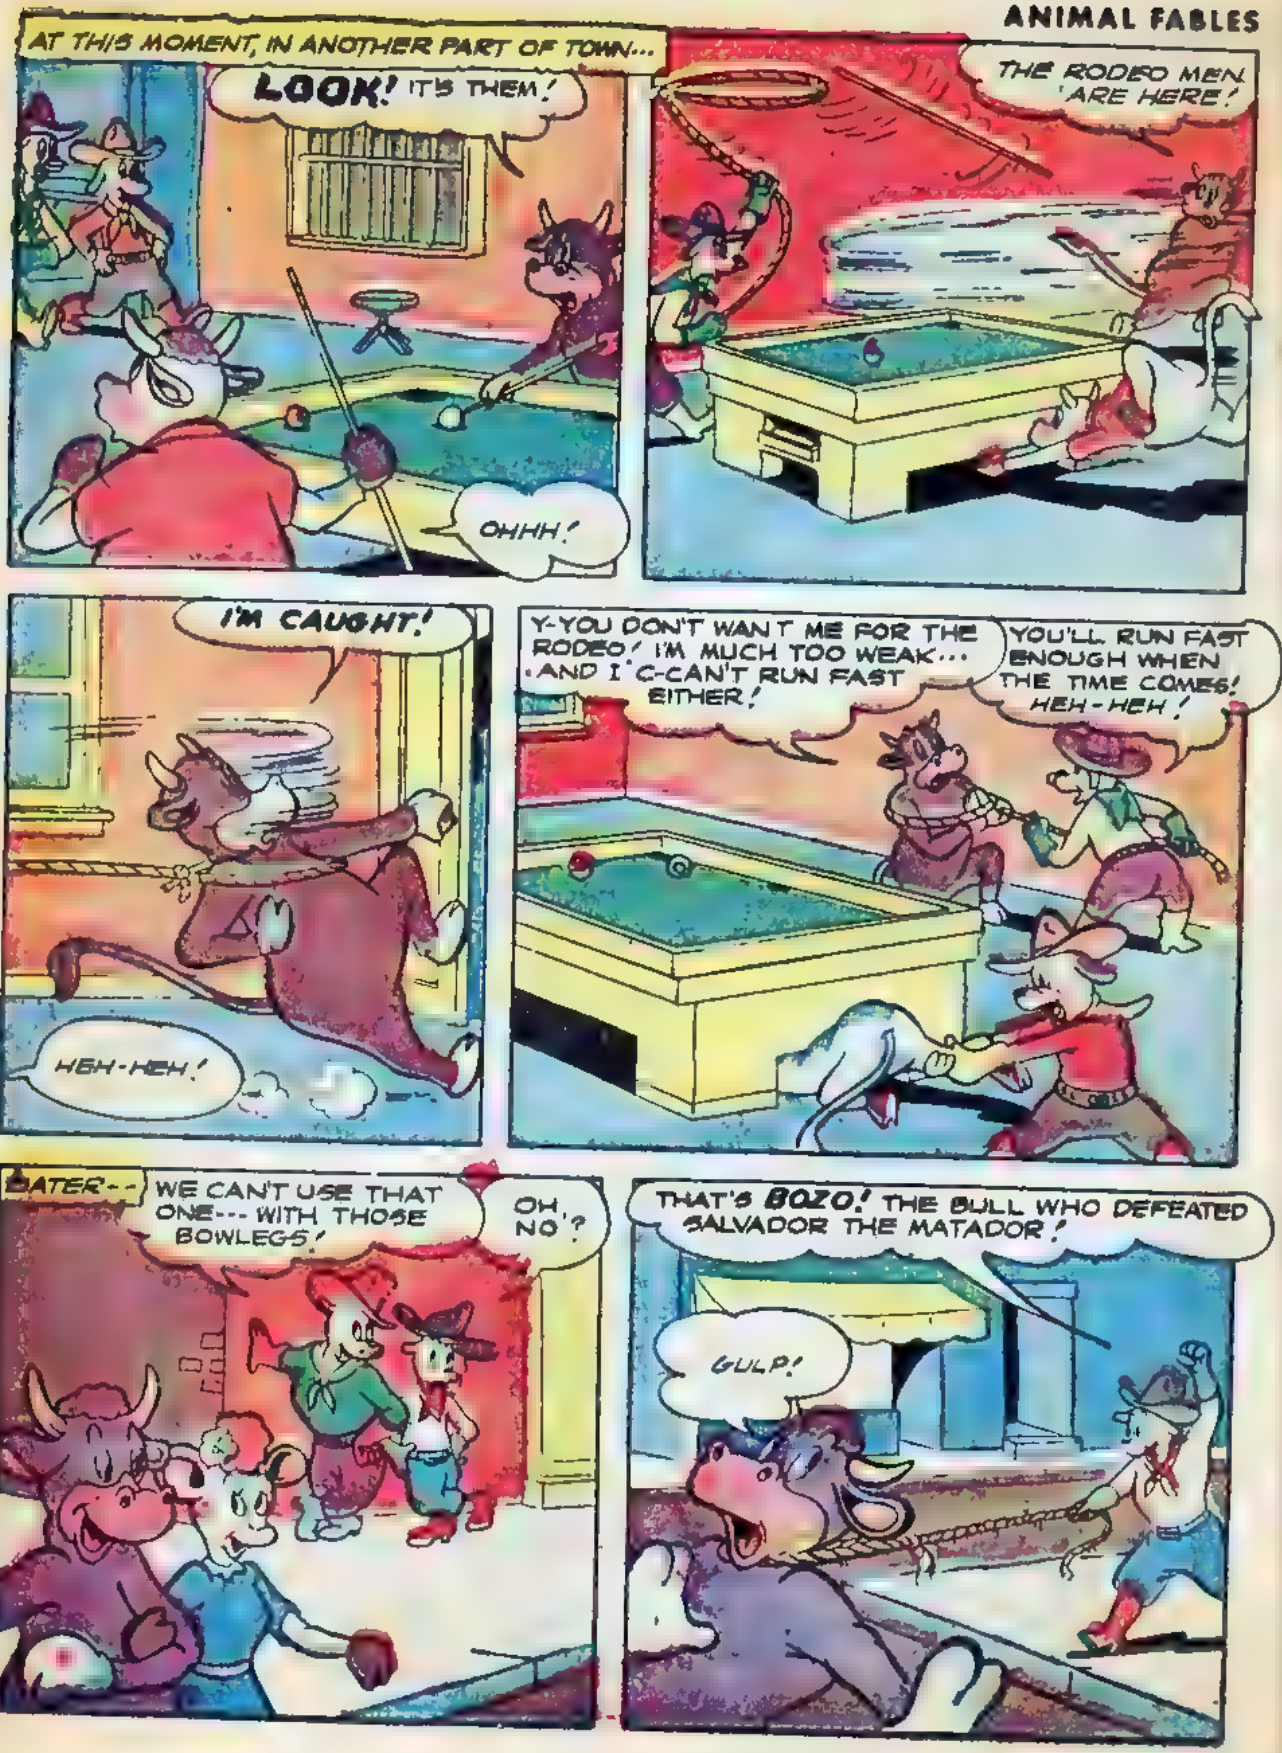
EVERYONE KNEW OF THE TERRIBLE THINGS THAT HAPPENED AT THE RODEO. HOW YOUNG BULLS WERE WRESTLED AND HURLED TO THE GROUND AND THEIR HOOVES BOUND TOGETHER WITH ROPES ...
HOW AWFUL!
THE BULLS WHO CAME BACK WERE SO ASHAMED THEY COULDN'T FACE THEIR FRIENDS AGAIN, BUT I FOUGHT BACK! WHEN THE COWBOY TRIED TO WRESTLE ME TO THE GROUND, I SENT HIM FLYING WITH MY HORNS!



THEN I KICKED AND BUTTED UNTIL THEY WERE AFRAID TO COME NEAR ME WITH THE ROPES!
AT LAST THEY LET ME GO FREE! I WAS THE FIRST AND ONLY BULL TO WIN A VICTORY AT THE RODEO, THAT'S WHY, THE PEOPLE OF THIS TOWN ERECTED A STATUE OF ME!



ONLY A HERO LIKE YOURSELF IS GOOD ENOUGH FOR MY DAUGHTER, LOLITA!
THANK YOU, BOZO!
THOUGH HOW BOZO EVER BECAME A HERO WITH THOSE BOW-LEGS, I'LL NEVER UNDERSTAND!



AT THIS MOMENT, IN ANOTHER PART OF TOWN...
LOOK! IT'S THEM!
OHHH!
THE RODEO MEN 'ARE HERE!
I'M CAUGHT!
HEH-HEH!
Y-YOU DON'T WANT ME FOR THE RODEO! I'M MUCH TOO WEAK... AND I C-CAN'T RUN FAST EITHER!
YOU'LL RUN FAST ENOUGH WHEN THE TIME COMES! HEH-HEH!
LATER--
WE CAN'T USE THAT ONE--- WITH THOSE BOWLEGS!
OH NO!?
THAT'S BOZO! THE BULL WHO DEFEATED SALVADOR THE MATADOR!
GULP!

BOZO!
LOLITA -- S-SAVE ME!
--AND THEY TOOK BOZO AWAY!
DON'T WORRY, DAUGHTER! IF BOZO IS THE BULL I THINK HE IS, HE'LL TEACH THOSE RODEO MEN A LESSON!
START PACKING! WE'RE GOING TO THE RODEO OURSELVES! THIS WILL BE A GREAT DAY FOR BOZO— AND WE DON'T WANT TO MISS IT!
EVERYONE IN BULLTOWN TURNS OUT TO SEE THEIR HERO, BOZO! FOR THEY ARE ALL CONFIDENT OF HIS SUCCESS...
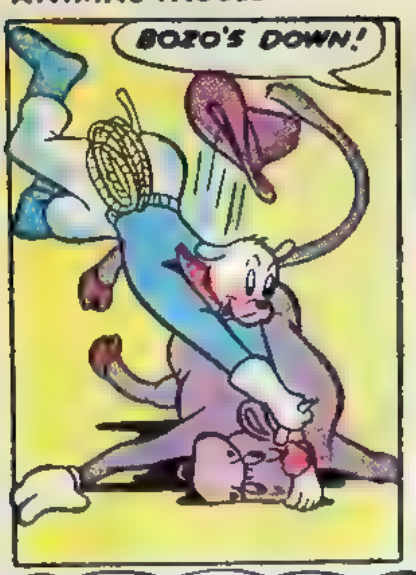
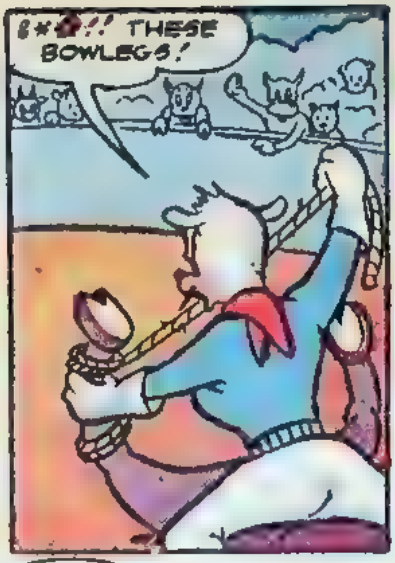
OUR HERO
RODEO
IN FACT, NO ONE IS WORRIED... EXCEPT BOZO!
OH, MY GOODNESS! THERE GOES A COWBOY AFTER ONE OF THE BULLS NOW!
HE'S GOT HIM!

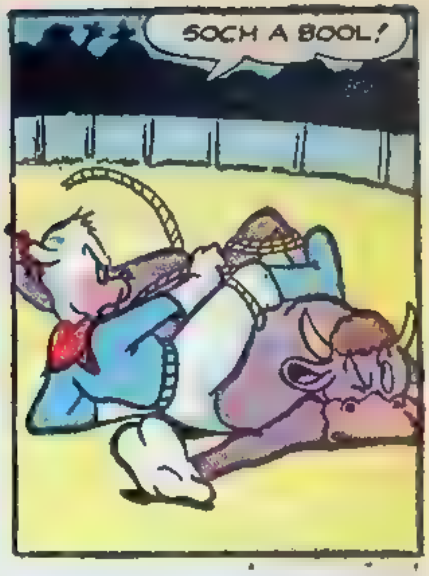
VIVA EL COWBOY!
HURRAH!
BRAVO!
IT'S ALMOST TOO TERRIBLE TO WATCH!
OH, THE SHAME OF IT! SOB!
I GUESS (GULP) HE'S THE ONE WHO'S GOING TO ROPE ME! OH, HOW WILL I EVER FACE MY FRIENDS AGAIN?
A FEW MOMENTS LATER, THE STALL GATES OPEN. BOZO RACES OUT WITH ALL THE SPEED HIS BOWLEGS CAN MUSTER...
THE COWBOY IS GAINING ON HIM, FATHER!
NEVER FEAR! BOZO WILL KNOW HOW TO HANDLE HIM!



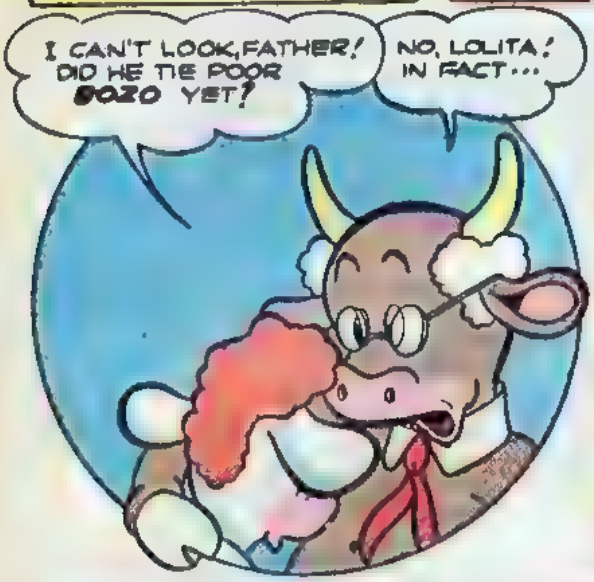
BOZO'S DOWN!



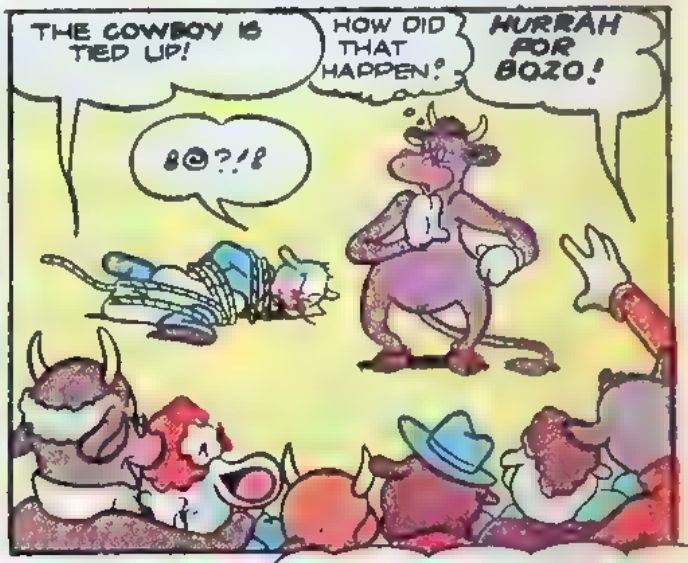
!*@?! THESE BOWLEGS!



SOCH A BOOL!



I CAN'T LOOK, FATHER! DID HE TIE POOR BOZO YET?
NO, LOLITA! IN FACT...



THE COWBOY IS TIED UP!
HOW DID THAT HAPPEN?
HURRAH FOR BOZO!

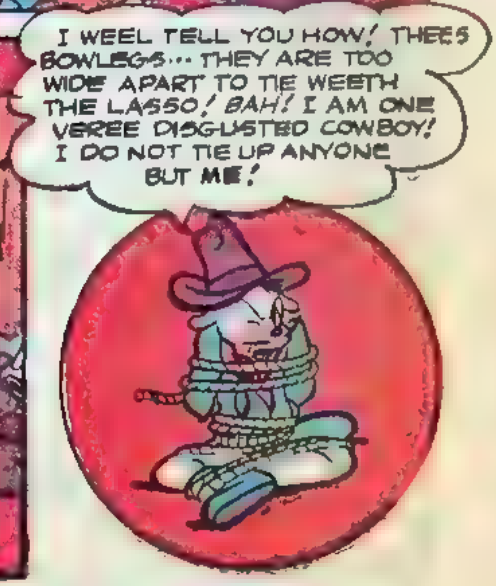
AND SO BOZO BECAME THE GREATEST HERO IN BULL-TOWN AND HE WON THE FAIR LOLITA...
BUT NO ONE EVER QUITE UNDERSTOOD HOW HE DID IT... LEAST OF ALL - BOZO!



I WEEL TELL YOU HOW! THEES BOWLEGS... THEY ARE TOO WIDE APART TO TIE WEETH THE LASSO! BAH! I AM ONE VEREE DISGUSTED COWBOY! I DO NOT TIE UP ANYONE BUT ME!

The FOX and the GRAPES

a modern version of the famous Aesop Fable

Once upon a time there was a hungry fox – in fact, he hadn't had anything to eat in almost a week and his ribs were sticking through his fur. Brother, he was a hungry fox!

The fox squatted down on his haunches, underneath a luscious bunch of grapes hanging from a tall trellis. He looked up at them out of one eye. Then he closed that eye, and looked up at them with the other.

Yes sir, those grapes were the real thing! The fox felt his mouth water. He bunched his muscles and jumped.

Now here is the sad fact – the grapes were exactly five feet off the ground. When the fox jumped, he went four feet, eleven inches into the air. Mind you, that isn't bad for a fox. But it wasn't high enough!

So he jumped again. This time he didn't jump as high as before. The next jump was even worse.

The fox was getting tired, but he kept trying to reach those grapes until he was just too tired to try anymore.

At last the fox realized that it wasn't any use. Those grapes and he just weren't meant for each other. He drew himself up on his shaky legs, looked back at the grapes with a proud and haughty glance, and stalked away from the vineyard.

"After all, why should I bother?" he asked himself. "Those grapes are sour."

And the moral of this story is:
When something we want is beyond our reach, we often pretend never to have wanted it.

ANIMAL FABLES

PORKY POSSUM GOES A' HUNTING!

Porky Possum was hungry. For three days his mother had served nothing but fish for dinner. Porky was beginning to have a strong feeling of dislike for anything that lived under water. He wanted meat.

"Why can't we have a nice big steak?" he asked his mother.

"Because the butcher doesn't have any," his mother explained. "Besides, what's the matter with fish?"

"Roast beef?" Porky inquired hopefully.

"The butcher hasn't anything but fish. For tonight's dinner we're having a tasty filet of sole."

"Not even a lamb chop?" Porked asked, despairingly.

"One more word from you, Porky, and you'll go to bed without any dinner."

Porky groaned. With his tail dragging dejectedly, he went out the door.

The moment Porky stepped outside the door, he sniffed. There was an unfamiliar odor in the air. It came from the direction of Harpo Hip's house, across the way. Porky tiptoed over, and peeked in the window.

Harpo Hip and his family were just sitting down to a long table that sagged under the weight of several large, juicy ducks. The ducks were perfectly browned, and resting on large platters.

There was no doubt of it. The tempting odor that still teased Porky's nostrils came from those ducks.

"Psssst, Harpo." Porky signaled his friend.

Harpo excused himself, left the table, and came over to the window to talk to Porky.

"Where did you get those ducks?" Porky asked.

"We caught them ourselves. Dad and I went hunting for ducks this morning."

"Hunting!" Porky's mouth twisted in a leer. "Why didn't I think of that before? It's silly to depend on what the butcher has for sale, when you can catch anything you want to eat."

"It isn't always so easy," Harpo cautioned.

"Leave that to me," Porky said. "If you can catch duck, then I can catch duck. What'll I need besides a gun?"

"You'll need a dog for a retriever, to get the ducks out of the water when you shoot them down. And you'll need a decoy."

"What's a decoy?"

"A wooden model of a duck. You put it on the water to fool the real ducks. When the real ducks see it, they think everything is safe and come down within easy shooting range."

"Oh, boy, are they dumb!" Porky exclaimed. "This is gonna be fun!"

With a borrowed shotgun, a borrowed decoy duck, and a borrowed retriever dog, Porky went hunting. He had borrowed all his equipment from his trusting friend, Harpo.

Now Porky crouched in the tall grass bordering a pond where the decoy duck drifted aimlessly. The dog, whose name was Algy, scratched his ear with his hind paw. Then he sneezed violently.

"Quiet," Porky warned. "A fine retriever you are. Do you want to frighten away all the ducks?"

Algy looked up at him inquisitively, raising a large, flappy ear as though to hear what Porky was saying.

"Oh, I give up!" said Porky. "You're too stupid to understand!"

Algy barked agreeably. Then, as though pleased with the sound of his own voice, he ran around excitedly in circles, yapping all the while.

It was at this moment that Porky heard the honking of ducks overhead. Soon they came to rest on the surface of the pond. Porky lifted his shotgun and took careful aim. He pulled the trigger.

The recoil lifted Porky off the ground, and slammed him back again. There was a great belching roar from the shotgun. When Porky recovered and looked out, he saw a duck lying on its side exactly in the middle of the pond.

"I got him!" Porky yelled. "There's my duck dinner. Go get him, Algy!"

Algy leaped into the pond and swam out to the duck. In a minute, Porky saw him heading back with the duck grasped firmly between his teeth.

"Good old Algy," Porky thought. "What a retriever! And what a dinner I'm going to have tonight!"

Algy emerged, shivering, from the pond and dropped the duck at Porky's feet. Porky picked it up. There were five round black holes in the duck's side where the shotgun pellets had entered. There were even a few splinters sticking up around the holes.

"Wood!" exclaimed Porky. "I shot my own decoy duck!"

Algy barked happily.

After five fruitless hours of hunting, Porky started for home. After that first encounter, he had not seen another duck all day. Porky was discouraged.

"Filet of sole," he said to himself. "Phooey! How I hate fish!"

A wooden sign, with a printed warning, stood near the path leading to the pond. Porky had come through the grass, and hadn't seen the sign before.

It read: "Hunting Strictly Forbidden! Twenty-five Dollars' Fine, Or Five Days In Jail, For Anyone Found Shooting Ducks!"

Porky let out a deep breath. He wiped perspiration from his forehead. "Whe-ew!" he said. "It's lucky for me I didn't catch anything. I guess I must've come to the wrong pond."

Hurrying away, Porky didn't see the rock jutting up from the path at his feet. He tripped, and the gun slipped from his hands. The gun stock slammed the ground, and the gun went off. There was a flash of fire as the shotgun pellets hurtled into the air.

The next instant there was a plop! and a duck fell dead at Porky's feet.

"Golly," Porky said aloud, "he must have been flying overhead just when I . . ."

"Shooting ducks, eh?" a harsh voice interrupted. Glancing up, Porky saw the game warden staring at him with a meaningful look.

"But—but I . . . " Porky started to explain.

"You're under arrest, young fellow. Don't try to alibi your way out of this, either. You wouldn't have a shotgun, a bird dog, and a decoy duck if you weren't hunting ducks. You'd better come along with me."

That night, in the jail-house, they served Porky filet of sole for dinner. Not until Porky was bailed out the next morning by his mother, did he discover that his mother had served roast duck for dinner the night before. It seemed that Harpo Hip's mother had given her one of the ducks, and she'd been saving it for a surprise.

Incidentally, Porky Possum still hates fish.

FROM OCEAN TO OCEAN

The story of the water cycle

ALL LIFE DEPENDS UPON WATER. WITHOUT A CONTINUOUS SUPPLY, THE LIVING SUBSTANCE OF ALL PLANTS AND ANIMALS IS DESTROYED. MAN — WHO IS HIMSELF COMPOSED OF ABOUT 70% WATER — HAS FOUND WATER NOT ONLY NECESSARY FOR LIFE BUT A USEFUL, PLENTIFUL AND CONVENIENT SUBSTANCE...

"Man uses water in an ever-increasing number of ways in the home, in industry, in commerce, for safety, for recreation, and for health."

But if everybody uses so much water, why isn't it ever used up?

That's a good question, Martha. Let's find out...

Here, shown in blue, is the greatest reservoir of water on the earth — the ocean. Tell the class how big it is, Tom!

The ocean covers nearly three-fourths of the earth's surface, to an average depth of about two and a half miles!

Correct! And in addition to the waters of the ocean, there are hundreds of thousands of rivers, lakes, springs, and other bodies of water on land which are vital to life on earth.

Strange as it may seem, rocks and minerals, sand and soil, and even dry desert air contain water. There is enough moisture in the atmosphere to cover the earth with a layer of water several inches deep!

Water in the AIR? How does it get in?

Wherever bodies of water are exposed to the air, the heat of the sun causes EVAPORATION — a process by which water changes to an invisible gas called "water vapor" that mixes with the air.

So THAT'S why the board dries! The water is evaporating!

Also, wherever plants and trees grow, the sun's energy causes TRANSPIRATION — a process by which the plant's moisture escapes from its leaves into the atmosphere. Follow me

We can demonstrate TRANSPIRATION by covering the plant with a jar and exposing it to the sun.
Why, look at all the water that forms inside the jar!
But how can we tell there is water vapor in the air? We can't SEE it..
I have put some ice in this dry can. The water on the outside of the can came from the air which was chilled by contact with it. When cooled, water vapor changes back into pure water. We call this change "CONDENSATION."
Now watch the effects of CONDENSATION! Look up there... When water vapor in the atmosphere is cooled enough, it condenses into droplets of fresh water which drift together to form clouds.
I know what holds those clouds up— air pressure!
Wow!— it's teeming!
Yes, because when clouds are too full and heavy, these water droplets fall back to the earth as rain. Rain is nature's purest water!
Well, what makes it snow sometimes?
If the air in which CONDENSATION occurs is cold enough, the water returns to earth in the form of snow. Sometimes rain freezes on its journey to the earth, causing sleet, hail or glaze. When moisture comes out of the air in any of these forms, we call it PRECIPITATION...
As rain falls from the clouds or snows melt, part of the water seeps through the soil and is taken in by the roots of plants. The rest runs off in streams that flow back again to the sea. But sooner or later, it will get back in the air as WATER VAPOR!
Thus TRANSPIRATION— EVAPORATION—CONDENSATION and PRECIPITATION are repeated in a never-ending cycle. This movement of water in nature— from the earth to the air to the earth— is called the WATER CYCLE.
WATER CYCLE
And that's why we never use up all the water. We always get it back again from the air!

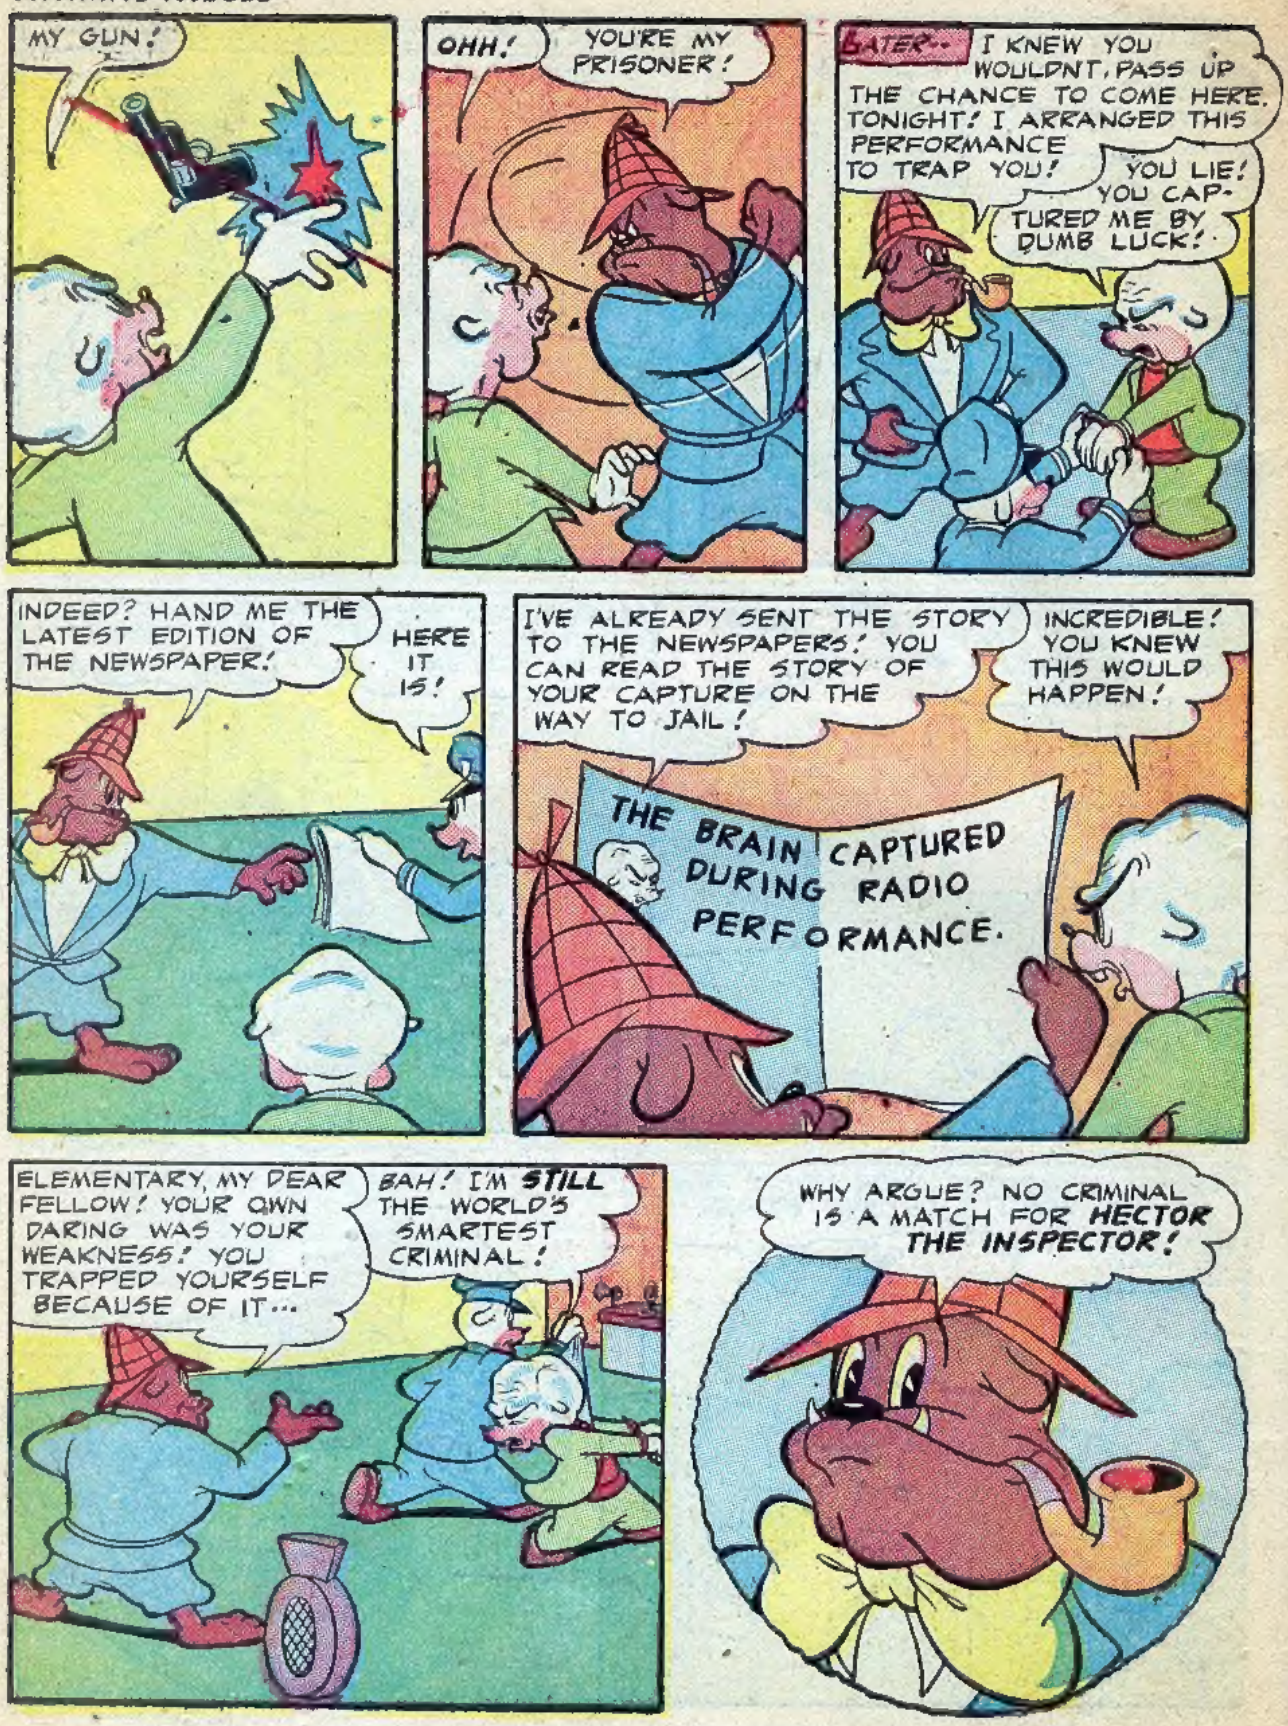
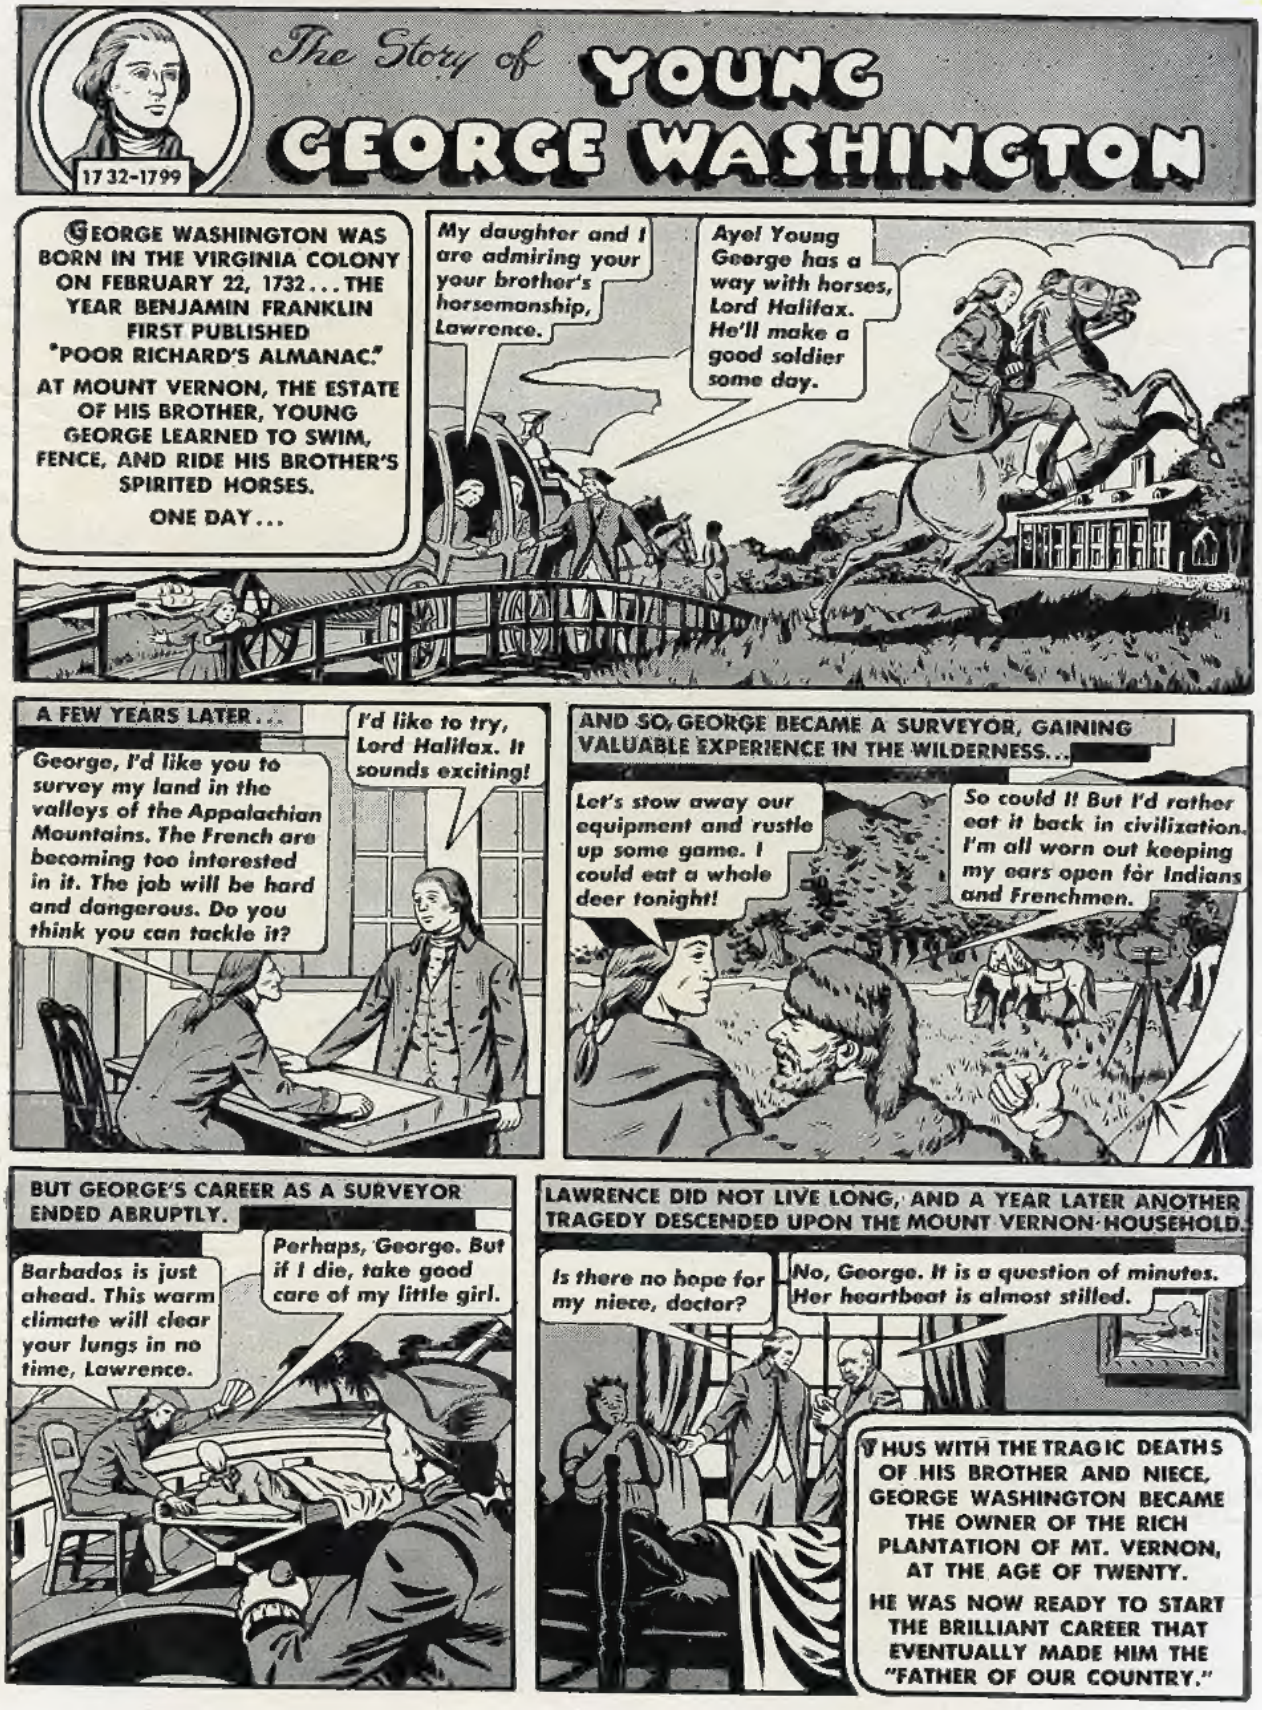
HELP ME WITH THIS COSTUME! THE SHOW STARTS IN A FEW MINUTES!
FOR YOU MY FRIEND, THE SHOW IS OVER!
GLUGG!
THIS POOR FELLOW WAS TO PORTRAY ME! TONIGHT NO ACTOR WILL TAKE MY ROLE!

HEH! HEH! THE BRAIN HIMSELF WILL BE THE STAR OF THIS PERFORMANCE!
DRESSING ROOM
MEANWHILE THE RADIO SHOW GOES ON —
THE BRAIN IS TRAPPED INSIDE THE BANK, HECTOR! WHAT NOW?
I'LL GO AFTER HIM!
AHA! THERE'S THE VILLAIN NOW! TAKE THAT AND THAT!
BANG BANG
SOUND EFFECTS
HEH! HEH! YOU DIDN'T KILL ME, HECTOR! NOW YOU DIE!
THIS ISN'T IN THE SCRIPT!
FAREWELL, SLEUTH! THIS GUN ISN'T LOADED WITH BLANKS!
THEN YOU'RE REALLY THE BRAIN ...
I'VE BEEN EXPECTING YOU! I KEPT A LOADED PISTOL HIDDEN BENEATH MY SCRIPT!
BLAM



MY GUN!
OHH!
YOU'RE MY PRISONER!
LATER--
I KNEW YOU WOULDN'T PASS UP THE CHANCE TO COME HERE. TONIGHT! I ARRANGED THIS PERFORMANCE TO TRAP YOU!
YOU LIE! YOU CAPTURED ME BY DUMB LUCK!
INDEED? HAND ME THE LATEST EDITION OF THE NEWSPAPER!
HERE IT IS!
I'VE ALREADY SENT THE STORY TO THE NEWSPAPERS! YOU CAN READ THE STORY OF YOUR CAPTURE ON THE WAY TO JAIL!
INCREDIBLE! YOU KNEW THIS WOULD HAPPEN!
THE BRAIN CAPTURED DURING RADIO PERFORMANCE.
ELEMENTARY, MY DEAR FELLOW! YOUR OWN DARING WAS YOUR WEAKNESS! YOU TRAPPED YOURSELF BECAUSE OF IT...
BAH! I'M STILL THE WORLD'S SMARTEST CRIMINAL!
WHY ARGUE? NO CRIMINAL IS A MATCH FOR HECTOR THE INSPECTOR!



The Story of YOUNG GEORGE WASHINGTON
1732-1799
GEORGE WASHINGTON WAS BORN IN THE VIRGINIA COLONY ON FEBRUARY 22, 1732... THE YEAR BENJAMIN FRANKLIN FIRST PUBLISHED "POOR RICHARD'S ALMANAC."
AT MOUNT VERNON, THE ESTATE OF HIS BROTHER, YOUNG GEORGE LEARNED TO SWIM, FENCE, AND RIDE HIS BROTHER'S SPIRITED HORSES.
ONE DAY...
My daughter and I are admiring your your brother's horsemanship, Lawrence.
Aye! Young George has a way with horses, Lord Halifax. He'll make a good soldier some day.
A FEW YEARS LATER...
George, I'd like you to survey my land in the valleys of the Appalachian Mountains. The French are becoming too interested in it. The job will be hard and dangerous. Do you think you can tackle it?
I'd like to try, Lord Halifax. It sounds exciting!
AND SO, GEORGE BECAME A SURVEYOR, GAINING VALUABLE EXPERIENCE IN THE WILDERNESS...
Let's stow away our equipment and rustle up some game. I could eat a whole deer tonight!
So could I! But I'd rather eat it back in civilization. I'm all worn out keeping my ears open for Indians and Frenchmen.
BUT GEORGE'S CAREER AS A SURVEYOR ENDED ABRUPTLY.
Barbados is just ahead. This warm climate will clear your lungs in no time, Lawrence.
Perhaps, George. But if I die, take good care of my little girl.
LAWRENCE DID NOT LIVE LONG, AND A YEAR LATER ANOTHER TRAGEDY DESCENDED UPON THE MOUNT VERNON HOUSEHOLD.
Is there no hope for my niece, doctor?
No, George. It is a question of minutes. Her heartbeat is almost stilled.
THUS WITH THE TRAGIC DEATHS OF HIS BROTHER AND NIECE, GEORGE WASHINGTON BECAME THE OWNER OF THE RICH PLANTATION OF MT. VERNON, AT THE AGE OF TWENTY.
HE WAS NOW READY TO START THE BRILLIANT CAREER THAT EVENTUALLY MADE HIM THE "FATHER OF OUR COUNTRY."
